

Frameless furniture

Almost certainly you can not find in the post-Soviet space a man who could not remember such a well-known soft drink promotion which sounded the words: "Image - nothing, thirst - all!". This motto tells us that everyone at some point, forget about the show and about fashion, because they come to the fore the urgent needs and personal comfort. However, the best option is to combine a stylish design and convenience. And it does not matter what is in matter - about fashion or advertised on the restaurant. The same is the suitcase with decoration of our homes. Some people go into some extreme, when engaged in interior design in their home or studio. Some people believe that the furniture in the house should be, above all, convenient, and how it looks - it is not so principal. In the housing of such a man we can meet old cabinet or Soviet times sofa - just because people got used to this furniture and it is convenient to use it. Still, this furniture is hardly has any aesthetic value. At the other case - when the home owners are keen to sacrifice comfort in order to create the interior, like the image of the fashion magazine. Of course, in this suitcase, each guest will marvel at the extent to which the slightest thought out interior elements, or to which modern technology is used. At the same time, the tenants themselves may feel uncomfortable in their own home, since expensive designer furniture frequently resembles a museum piece and not furniture for everyday use. Happily, finding a reasonable compromise between fashion and comfort is quite real. For example, today the huge popular so-called frameless furniture, we can see it in the luxury house, and in flats among ordinary citizens. Frameless furniture consists of special covers, special full of small balls of expanded polystyrene. Now, such firms produce different padded stools and sofas, bag chairs. Frameless furniture is extremely easy to use, because the small filler can make furniture form most fitting for each individual. In addition, this furniture is a smart detail of the interior thanks to the assortment of forms and colors. The most popular among consumers enjoy the famous seat bag, which for many people has become the most favorite piece of furniture in the house.
